

Later from Costa Rica.

The Panama Star has advices from Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, to the 16th ult. We quote :

Business throughout the country is at a perfect stand still, and the State generally is in a very deplorable condition. Little has been done during the past season towards cultivating the soil, and the coming harvest, from December to March, will barely yield a tithe of former years' produce. Great dissatisfaction still exists against President Mora, on account of the results of the late Nicaragua invasion, the terrible loss of life consequent thereon having more or less affected every family in the Republic. This, as might be expected, has created a strong prejudice against the Mora administration, which can only be done away with by his removal from power, and at present there is every prospect of a speedy revolution.

The people, however, remain firm against the common enemy in Nicaragua, and there is now an army of five hundred Costa Ricans on the frontier in Guanacasta, under command of Gen. Cañas, ready to oppose the threatened invasion of that Territory by Walker.

The weekly Album, of San José, Costa Rica, is now published partly in English, under the superintendence of Mr. Cauty.