A letter from our Greytown correspondent which we publish to-day, while it gives some curious details of the filibuster expedition up the San Juan, throws great doubts on the reported successes of Lockridge in the capture of the post at Sarapiquí. However that may be, it is certain that so far as robbery and plunder is concerned, on the small scale within their power, these filibusters have done just what might be expected of Col. Titus and his Border Ruffians. So far as relates to robbing Indians and stealing plantations, Titus and his men will doubtless do good service.
