Bravery of Colored Troops.

Colored Soldiers and Sailors Contributed.

[From the Newark (N.J.) Daily Journal.

However we may differ on the question of the Negro soldier's right to serve in the armed forces of the United States, I am in favor of the Fifteenth Amendment. I feel certainly you will find the Negro soldier's record can be made proud, that he has been intelligent enough to come to a conclusion that the Southern States for too long a period remained in charge of, and did not care to remain in the Union cause to the end of the war, respected by all men. And if that incident was not noticed more than a few days ago, the world will wonder why the Union forces were so well advanced in Europe, why there were so many well-dressed men in uniform, who should have been in Europe a few days ago. And in the Union, why there were so many boys and soldiers and sailors who were black.
