

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Herald publishes the following account of the sailing of a Cuban expedition under Col. Ryan, who escaped from the officers:

The mysterious movements of filibusterers during the last week between New York and New Jersey were for the purpose of mystifying the authorities and Spanish spies and test the reliability of the men. The men left their various headquarters at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in squads, carrying carpet bags. By half past six scarcely a man remained at the various headquarters. The men, when approaching the tugs, said they were going to the Fishing Banks. The tugs transferred the men to the steamer, which proceeded to sea with 800 men organized under the name of the First New York Regiment. Among officers aboard were Col. Ryan, Capt. Peters, G. N. Spear, the Fenian cavalryman, Capt. Anderson, of Richmond, Va., and Dr. G. V. Dorset, also of Richmond, who goes out as Medical Director. No arms or ammunition, except a few side arms, revolvers and a few Remington rifles were aboard. Large quantities of arms and ammunition were dispatched previously by a steamer understood to be the Quaker City, which is awaiting the expedition at sea. The volunteers take with them an elegant flag, inscribed, "First New York Regiment Cuban Volunteers."

The Herald also says: Col. Ryan, after escaping on Wednesday, went to Brooklyn, where he was concealed in the house of a friend until Thursday night, when he proceeded, disguised as an express driver, to another place and remained in a house within two blocks of the Ludlow street prison until 9 o'clock Saturday night.

The Times states: 'The Quaker City is waiting for the expedition outside the Narrows. The men were to be transferred to her. General Gioncuria is commander in chief, but Colonel Ryan leads the volunteers. A number of officers of the late United States volunteers are in the ranks to be appointed to positions on their arrival. The Quaker City has on board 5000 Remington rifles, 2 batteries of artillery and equipments for a brigade of cavalry, with an abundance of ammunition.

NEW YORK, June 27.—One of the fifteen gunboats building here for the Spanish navy was launched yesterday and towed to the foot of Vesey street to receive her machinery. The contract requires the completion of the entire number by August 1.
