
LYNCHED.—The Hayneville (Ala.) Chronicle of the 16th ult., states that a man calling himself Anderson Bell, alias William Anderson, was strapped down across a whiskey barrel in that place and struck forty lashes save one on his naked back. His offence was playing Zouave, by seeking improper interviews, and attempting to elope with some of the school girls of the village.
